

A Day in the Sky

Fourteen-year old Brian Mitchell was very excited to get in an airplane. "He was so excited to experience flight," commented his mother Laura Mitchell. "I went up with him. He was looking all over from right to left. He even got to hold the controls for a bit."

Raisso Chacko enjoyed a helicopter flight with her family and nurse. "She had been having a couple of bad days so we didn't really know if she was going to enjoy the flight. However, she got up there and after about a minute started smiling and cooing. She was perfectly content and happy," said Chacko's nurse, Ellen Buckingham.

"Our grin-and-giggle-o-meter was spinning so fast that it broke at about a zillion grins and giggles. So we'll never know how many grins and giggles we got. But we got at least a zillion," said Dean McCully, Day In The Sky program manager.

McCully will be organizing a similar event scheduled for September 16, 2006. If you are interested in volunteering as a pilot or otherwise, visit www.takeflightforkids.org.

More than 1,000 people attended the "Day in the Sky" event.
